

About Orr Hot Springs

Orr Hot Springs is a small, tranquil resort settled deep in the rolling hills of the Mendocino Coastal Range. Situated on a beautiful country road between the towns of Mendocino and Ukiah, the springs flourish on 27 acres at the headwaters of Big River.

Pomo Native Americans regularly passed through this vibrant spot on trading expeditions and on annual treks to the Mendocino coast. Unfriendly tribes agreed to co-exist peacefully while stopping at the hot springs.

In the late 1800s, "Orr Hot Sulphur Springs" became a resting spot on the Ukiah-Mendocino stagecoach line. It developed into a popular resort for city-dwellers who came seeking health and relaxation. The mineral waters were heralded as bringing great relief to arthritis and rheumatism, and to blood, kidney and liver disorders.

Our lodge and some of the cabins were constructed in the early 1930s from locally milled redwood and retain the charm and grace of that period. Newer additions blend into the forested river environment.

Experience for yourself the unique qualities of this very special place.

About the Waters

The mineral waters come to the tubs hot from the earth at approximately 106°F. Sulphur, calcium, potassium, boron, and many other naturally occurring minerals are in abundance, making for a truly healthful and rejuvenating bath.

Several underground springs are tapped to bring the water into our Bathhouse. Seven Victorian porcelain tubs continually fill with mineral water at an average temperature of 104°F. Five are in private rooms, while our two "Stargazing" tubs are on the Bathhouse deck.

From these tubs bathers go to the communal tubs – one under a covered roof and two outdoors. These pools range in temperature from 104°F to 107°F. Clothing is optional.

Several small springs, unaltered by chemicals, flow into our 15' x 59' cold pool, which is built directly into the rock of the hillside. This 60°-70°F spring-fed pool provides a refreshing change from the hot baths.

Next to the swimming pool are our gas-fired Sauna and Steam rooms.
